quest is made that you will send to this division, as soon as possible, the units eligible for the trophy, together with the strength of the same and the facilities the different units have for practice. A blank is attached which, if filled out and sent to me, will give me the above information.I hope that the trophy will arrive safely and accomplish the desired end.
J. G. EWING,
Manager.BAHAMAS PLAYING TOURIST GAMEWith an aggregate commerce of less than three million dollars, the Bahamas are showing a great interest in tourism to the business. The following account is by Conrad Henry D. Baker.The last winter season at Nassau demonstrated the usual popularity of this island among American tourists.
The one large hotel operated by an American company and many boarding houses were crowded with guests.
Numerous private residences have also in recent years been rented or purchased by well-to-do Americans for use in the winter. The demand for houses with modern sanitary arrangements is now greater than the supply, and it is obvious that to keep pace with this demand there will have to be considerable building within the near future. There is also great need for more hotels, especially such as would accommodate people of moderate income. Encouragement to the tourist traffic, by granting a subsidy of $25,000 per year to a steamship com-pany which maintains during the tourist season a service of about two voyages per week with Miami, Fla. The Ward Line, which ordinarily operates a fortnightly service between New York and Nassau, increases the frequency of its service during the winter months. Occasionally excursion boats from New York, touring the West Indies, Central America and Mexico during the winter, stop at Nassau.Ships drawing more than 16 feet can not enter the harbor, a tender being necessary to bring passengers and cargo ashore. There is much interest at present in the deepening of the harbor, and any American companies which would be able to perform this work at a cost low enough to seem reasonable might find it worth while to get in touch with the Bahama government regarding this matter. The work would necessitate not only dredging, but considerable blasting of rock, and would probably cost over $2,000,000.The tourist season at Nassau practically starts January 1, with the opening of the large hotel, although many people seek accommodation here in November and December. On account of the balmy climate and pure atmosphere, which are very favorably affected by the trade winds, the islands enjoy a high reputation for healthiness, especially in winter.An appropriation of about $10,000 has been made for the erection of a wireless station at Nassau, to have a radius of communication of not less than 499 miles by day. A contract for the erection of this station has been awarded to the Anglo-French Wireless Co. of London. This will be the first wireless station in the Bahama islands and should make communication much easier with the American coast and contribute to the safety of ships in Bahama waters.Nassau for 20 years has had a cable service with Jupiter, Fla. A most useful feature of this cable service has been the weather forecasts which are received from Washington. In case of hurricanes, Nassau ordinarily has 24 hours' notice from Washington.KATHE HERE IN DISTRESSBurned out boiler plates, caused Captain H. Frankens, master of the German tramp steamer Kathe, to divert his course in order that he could complete repairs at Honolulu.En route from Hongkong to Mexico and Central American ports the steamer put into Honolulu in distress this morning. A corp of mechanics from a local iron works visited the ship at anchorage and it is expected that the repairs to the vessel will be completed to permit the vessel resuming the voyage to the west coast of America tomorrow afternoon.The Kathe, is bearing 552 Chinese steerage passengers to Mexico. The vessel is one of several operated by Chinese immigration companies between the coast of Asia and Mexico and Central and South American ports. The vessel is said to be well fitted to care for this class of travel.
In following their usual course, the steamers in this line keep well to the southward of the Hawaiian Islands.The Kathe sailed from Hongkong on December 31. Rather than to take any chance of losing one or more of the immigrants, Captain Frankens decided not to come into the harbor, but remain outside, where work of repairing the machinery will be done.
H. Hackfeld & Co. are the agents for the vessel.It's queer what funny things some men can see when they are blind drunk.Ever notice how willing people are to assist you when you don't need help?Better laugh at people's jokes; you may have occasion to spring one yourself some day.We can't help feeling sorry for a millionaire with indigestion.WHO SLIPPED THIS HOT ONE
TO THE 'TISER?Duke and a 'Man-Eating Eel' Do Battle in Print—Quick, Officer, the Padded CellDuke Kahanamoku's terrific battle with a high-powered, man-eating eel, described in a first-page story in the morning paper, is branded by Duke himself as untrue and a fake.That story of a fight for life ten feet beneath the water, of his choking the sea-monster to death and thus freeing his body from its boa-constrictor embrace is a subject for laughter today and for anger on the part of many people who declare that the yarn hurts Waikiki beach and its reputation as an unusually safe bathing place.The horrible wounds sustained by the world's champion swimmer turn out to be a comparatively slight scratch on the index finger of his right hand, whose only seriousness lies in the fact that it was not immediately treated.To tell the whole story briefly, Duke was nipped by a small eel when he stuck his finger into a crevice of the coral. The rest of the yarn, says Duke, is hot air and imagination.Duke sat at his office desk in the public works department this morning. The index digit of his right hand was bandaged, but it didn't seem to interfere much in the exercise of the pencil with which he was working on a mass of mysterious figures."I think I saw the eel, but I'm not certain," he said, "it was perhaps two feet long. I was bitten by something.
I learned that when I felt a tug at the finger and on examining it found a little piece of skin had been cut off, as with a knife.""I was just playing around the raft, diving down to the bottom and running my hands around among the rocks, when something nipped the finger. I came up at once and examined it. There was a little blood, and as I glanced down I thought I saw an eel wriggling off through the water."FRED B. SMITH TALKS TO KAMEHAMEHA STUDENTS"If any student would acquire a good education, and be a success in life, he must, above all things, be possessed of good, clean morals," said Fred B.
Smith during an address given in Bishop chapel this morning before the entire student body and faculty of the Kamehameha Schools.Mr. Smith's address was brief as the greater part of the hour was taken up with singing by the National Association Quartet and the students of the school. The quartet sang three times and at the request of Mr. Smith the students sang "Hawaii Pono" and "Aloha Oe." Following this, Mr. Smith spoke, in part, as follows:"No doubt all of you young men and women, at least the greater part of this assembly, will forget this morning. But I am sure that I never shall, for this is the first time that I have had the opportunity to come into personal touch with you and to know your work. When I was in these islands six years ago I paid a visit to Kamehameha, but at that time I had no idea of the great work which is being carried on here every day, and I want to compliment you on your work and the choice which you made which put you in the institution where you are now.""I have had many experiences with the young men in all parts of the United States, and I have found on many occasions that the wanderlust in many of them are strong. Those in the north want to be in the south and those in the east want to be in the west. Now I want to impress upon you all that the man who succeeds is the man who stays where he is and sticks to that thing which he has chosen as his life work. Today there are 300 licensed aviators in the United States. There are about ninety-three millions of people in America today, and out of this number three hundred have chosen to fly, as it were. A few have automobiles, but the rest prefer to walk. Life is made by walking and not by flying. Stay at home; your life is in the place where you are and not until you have made good in the present place should you attempt to look for other fields.""Now there are some of you young fellows who are going to make a roaring failure of life. When I say this I do not mean any one person in particular. And I will make it plain that any one of you young men whose morals are not clean will be a failure.
I do not mean the fellow who is slow in his work, or the fellow who has a poor personality, but the young man who is going to fail is the one who is letting his morals break him down.
He may be a fellow of intelligence, he may have a good social standing, or he may lead all others in athletics, but if he is deficient in his morals, the break-down will come which will mean his utter defeat. If your morals are going to the dogs, then you are a doomed man, and you will never make a place for yourself in the world. In the world today it is the man with bad morals who is being dismissed; this is even true with regard to politics and athletics. Just as there is a place in the world for the Japanese and the Americans which could never be filled by any other race, so there is a place in the world for the Hawaiians which can be filled only by the Hawaiians, and it is up to you, young men and young ladies, in the Hawaiian Islands today good men are being sought after in political and civil life. In this great institution, you are surrounded with every possible method of preliminary trainingHONOLULU MAN IS FAVORED BY COAST BEAUTYSAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Jan. 18. — Beaming with joy over the success of her trip to Honolulu, but still glad to get back to San Francisco, Miss Mae Josephine Bennett, winner of the Call's girl wage earner beauty contest, returned home on the steamship Sierrra.Here are the names of the four men whom she promptly denied having become engaged to while away:R. P. Schoen, wealthy young druggist of Honolulu.Duke Kahanamoku, champion swimmer of the world.Dr. M. Schutz, the Sierra's physician.Captain H. C. Houdlette of the liner.
"No, most decidedly, I am not engaged," she announced before the Sierrra arrived at the dock. "They were all nice to me, and I had a fine time, but I didn't promise to marry anyone."Holds the Duke's Hair.
Dr. Schutz and Schoen were somewhat in the lead of the others, according to admissions she made."The Duke was all right until I went surf-riding with him at Waikiki beach, and then he let me fall off the outrigger. I grabbed his hair and held on till he yelled for mercy.""Captain Houdlette was also attentive," said Miss Bennett. "He was nice to me, but I never could find out whether he was married.""Which was the favorite, Mr. Schoen or Dr. Schutz? Well, I would hardly like to say. Mr. Schoen is a great big man and very handsome and he took me around every day in Honolulu. Dr.
Schutz is very nice, and he is good-looking, too."With that she refused to discuss the matter further, except to say that Dr.
Schutz took the position of ship's doctor only temporarily, and might live in San Francisco from now on, and to add that Mr. Schoen was coming up from the islands in May for a trip.Fame Precedes Her.
"I didn't know a soul on board at first," said Miss Bennett, "but soon every one got acquainted, and we had a jolly time every minute."Enter Mr. Schoen, the next suitor, when the Sierra arrived at Honolulu.
Benson & Smith, his employers, are the Hawaiian Islands agents for Haas, and he was delegated therefore to be her guide. He was, "It was every day that Mr. Schoen appeared to take her around in an automobile."Miss Bennett's fame had preceded her, and everywhere she went people proceeded to welcome her and point her out in the street, as San Francisco's beauty. This discussion of her charms affected her not a bit. On one occasion some envious person declared that she was really not so pretty as she was said to be. Miss Bennett heard of it and said: "Well, I never said that I was. I didn't make the award."Out of remarks of this kind by others she got as much enjoyment as any one.Hint Shows Favorite.
"There were at least fifteen good-looking bachelors in Honolulu who objected strenuously to Mr. Schoen's monopolizing all my time. I had three positions as stenographer offered to me, and to cap the climax the Japanese boy who took care of my room in the hotel wanted my picture when I departed."A final inadvertent remark by Miss Bennett may be the clew to the real favorite. "The parting in Honolulu was much more sad than that on the steamer," she said.

OPPOSES RECALL

whole board of supervisors. We would hunt the county in a constant turmoil with the political pot forever on the boil."The recall proviso shows the community to have no confidence in its elected representatives. It reminds me of a certain governor who put men in office with one hand, and with the other, it is said, demanded their undated resignations.""In Galveston, where there is no recall, men of such sterling worth were persuaded to run for office that four of the commissioners have held that position for ten years, being re-elected each term. If, however, you must have the recall, make it at least forty per cent of the vote for delegate in the last preceding two years, and not operative for two years.""The more thought that is given to this phase of commission government the more one is persuaded that it ought not to be made too easy. Only those who voted for an official should have any voice in his recall. Why should a man's opponents who did all in their power to keep him out of office, have any voice in his recall? In parliamentary procedure only those who vote for a motion may move to reconsider. Unless this view is sustained you could have the spectacle of a petition getting the required number of signatures, not one of whom voted for the party concerned.""For heaven's sake let us devise some scheme whereby we can have a rest from politics!"by which you can make good in life, and it is up to you."Even the man who wants the earth doesn't care to have it thrown at him in the form of mud.When his satanic majesty hasn't anything else to do, he teaches a woman to smoke cigarettes.The man who marries an angel in
